Armistice Boxing Card Wins Approval Large Number of Fans

Edwin Wenstob Proved Too Strong for the Crafty Curly
Kid from Irma—Dolan and Scott in Six
Round Draw—Prelims Good

Viking, Nov. 16.
With all the earmarks of big-time stuff, the Elks' auditorium was crowded to capacity last Saturday evening to witness the "all star" card promoted by C. A. Dupre, who, as matchmaker and promoter, brought together a fine array of fistic talent that did not disappoint the large number of fans from this and nearby towns who in spite of sloppy roads, flocked to the arena. All arrangements were well carried out and the crowd voiced their approval of the strenuous entertainment. A twelve piece band enlivened the occasion with snappy well played tunes and added a pleasing touch to the evening's festivities.

Great interest centred around the main event a scheduled ten round go between Curly Kid Archibald, of Irma, and Young Wenstob, of Viking district. In fact the match was termed "a natural," a match that brought together two boxers, champions in their own towns, with more than a local reputation. From the opening going both boys spared no time getting into action, the younger Wenstob showing better fighting form than ever before, and Curly Kid victor in many a hectic bout, looking for an opening to land his famous right. In the fourth round Curly received a cut over his left eye that bothered him somewhat but the bout kept at fever heat until the bell rang for the ninth round when Curly and his seconds called it a day. Wenstob's ability to hit his adversary and keep away from a right filled with dynamite earned him the decision. His boxing has improved wonderfully since his last appearance in a local ring and is a comer in the boxing fraternity.

In the semi-final event Mickey Dolan, of Chauvin, and George Scott, of Viking, boxed a six round go that was declared a draw. Both possessed of more than ordinary boxing ability gave the fans a real treat with their clever punching and dodging that brought cheers from the fans. Scott was a match for six rounds for the Chauvin Thunderbolt who looked in better condition for the fast pace. The press boys had an edge in favor of Scott but the draw decision proved just as popular.

"The McLafferty Kids" opened the program with a three rounder and there was not a dull moment while the clever little lads were on the canvas. Joe had them pretty well trained.

Two other youngsters, Toughy Pederson and Babe Klontz stepped three lively rounds to a draw and were given a fine hand for their good work.

Young Katesh got the nod over Punch Powell in a three round set-tee that whetted the sporting appetite of the fans. There was plenty of action with the leather flying fast. Henry Stevens and Carl Germaine staged a bang-up three rounder that had the fans yelling for more. Both were willing mixers and threw gloves with reckless abandon at each other for three fast rounds. The match was declared a draw and the fans gave both of them a real hand.

Cecil Fletcher and Ray Locke, gave an exhibition of four rounds of clever boxing as a preliminary to the Scott-Dolan scrap.

Dan Bush, formerly of Lacombe, was referee for the main bout, while Kirk Snyder, of Wainwright, assisted in the prelims and acted as announcer. Their work was generally satisfactory.

Mons. Dupre expects to stage another program in the near future.

Armistice Day Fittingly Observed in Irma

A memorial service was held in Kiefer's hall, Irma, on the morning of Remembrance Day, which was conducted by the Rev. Geeson, of Irma, assisted by the Rev. Griffiths of Jarow. Mrs. Adams placed the wreath and Mrs. B. Long very kindly assisted at the piano, both being ex-nursing sisters. Comrade R. Stone sounded the "Last Post." The two minutes' silence was observed, after which the Roll of Honor was read by Comrade C. R. Jackson.

Owing to the bad roads, the congregation was not as large as other years, although this did not deter the ex-service men and women from attending the parade and service in good numbers.

Those who were not fortunate enough to attend the service, missed a splendid address by the Rev. Geeson.

The collection taken for the benefit of the Tubercular Veterans of Alberta at Calgary, met with a generous response of $9.03.

UNITED CHURCH NOTES

The services next Sunday will be at Albert, Alma Mafer and Irma, at the usual hours. The theme of the sermon will be, "The Danger of Playing Safe."

The members of the congregation of the appointment will hold a supper and entertainment on Friday, November 24th. The friends of church, both in town and country, are cordially invited to share in this social time at nominal cost. The proceeds are in aid of the church funds.

The anniversary services held last week were very inspiring. The special preacher, the Rev. G. Endicott, was in his usual happy vein and was thoroughly enjoyed. Fortunately he was also able to be with us on Monday and thus we had extra good measure of his services. The evening service in town was made doubly attractive by reason of the special music contributed by the choir and Mrs. J. R. Whyte and the congregation, which filled the church, was well repaid for venturing out.

The supper and entertainment on Monday was equally successful from every standpoint. The tables were loaded with good eats, served by willing waitresses, and appreciated by many guests. The program which followed was of an unusually high order.

Low was the worthy chairmanship of the Rev. R. W. Griffiths, of Jarow. No one could single any item for special praise for every item was thoroughly prepared and effectively rendered. There was good variety so that good fellowship and hearty enjoyment characterized the whole proceedings. At the close the pastor, the Rev. J. R. Geeson, heartily thanked all who had contributed in any way to the success of the anniversary. The proceeds exceeded $43.00 by a few cents. The program was as follows: O Canada; pianoforte trio, the Misses Geesons; vocal solo, Mrs. Pryce Jones; reading, Mrs. N. O. Parks; pianoforte duet, Mrs. B. Hadlow and Ray Locke; chorus, intermediate girls; vocal solo and reading, Rev. E. W. Griffiths; address, Rev. Endicott; vocal solo, Mrs. J. R. Whyte; piano solo, Miss E. M. York; reading, Mrs. Waite; vocal duet, Mrs. A. H. Locke and Mr. G. Fenton; God Save the King.

Avondale U.F.W.A. are sponsoring a pay to be staged in Caron's hall on Friday evening, December 1st, entitled, "Yimmie Yonson's Yob," and it promises to be one of the big winter attractions; a dance will also be enjoyed the remaining hours after the play. Some very good local talent has been secured and it will pay everyone to come and see first-hand what amateur artists can accomplish while they enjoy a good clean play, with lots of laughs and dramatic parts intermingling.

"Your daughter was to give me an answer to a very important question this evening," said a Holden fellow when he called at a Viking home last week. "Be seated," her dad said, "She will be down in half an hour." "I suppose she is making up her mind," the young fellow remarked. "No, that wouldn't take her that long," the old man replied, "She's making up her face."

Ask New Provincial Poll Tax To Pay Hospitalization Costs

At Municipal Districts' Convention, That Opens in Edmonton
November 22—Other Important Resolutions
Will Be Studied—To Hear Ministers

Imposing of a provincial head or poll tax on all employees not paying a municipal tax and on persons seeking employment in this province, is proposed in a resolution to be considered at the convention.

The program for this twenty-fifth convention includes addresses of welcome on the opening day by Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor and Mayor D. Knott, to which a reply will be made by H. W. Bright, vice-president.

To Hear Ministers

Hon. George Hoadley, minister of health and agriculture; Hon. R. G. Reid, minister of municipal affairs; Hon. Horace Harvey, chief justice of the supreme court of Alberta; Premier Brownlee; Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works will be the chief speakers at the three-day session.

The proposed resolution asking the government to pass legislation providing for a head tax says that such a levy is required to take care of the hospitalization of all indigent sick. Thus, municipalities would be relieved of financial strain while there would be assistance in relieving ratepayers of the present excessive taxation.

Employees Responsible

The plan in putting such a tax into operation is that receipt books or cards be distributed by the government to all employers of labor who would issue the receipts or cards to all employees upon payment of the amount of head tax set by the government.

The tax would be payable annually with the employer held responsible for its collection. Revenue from the tax would be turned into the provincial government to form a general fund out of which hospitalization would be paid at rates as now set by the government.

Receipt cards would be carried by employees at all times and would be produced when they were seeking employment.

Another proposed resolution requests the dominion government to assume full responsibility for direct relief. It points out that the dominion is continually raising indirect taxes and by so doing is "evading its responsibility in carrying its allotted share of direct relief" because what is raised in this way more than offsets the amount refunded by the dominion to the dominion to issuing authorities.

Want Settlers Regulated

The convention is asked in another resolution to protest against placing of settlers upon land in municipalities, unless such settlers are in a position to support themselves. It is claimed that due inquiry should be made before permission is given settlers to go on the land.

Replies from the government concerning resolutions passed at the last convention will be reported upon at the sessions at Edmonton.

Household Drudgery The Bane of a Woman's Life

Nature intended women to be strong and healthy instead of weak and sickly, but how can a woman have good health when she has to go through the household drudgery without any relaxation. Is it any wonder she becomes nervous and irritable, has hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sinking and smothering sensations, and can't sleep at night.

Women who are weak and run down will find in Milburn's H. & N. Pills a remedy to strengthen the system and bring back the much desired health.

The Hudson Bay Route Again

The Financial Post of Toronto, that uncompromising opponent of the Hudson Bay Railway, has taken note of the article which appeared in this column some weeks ago in which we took exception to the attacks made by this Eastern financial paper on this great national scheme to provide the prairie west with an ocean port somewhat nearer to its great productive areas than Montreal in the east and Vancouver in the west. It will be recalled that The Financial Post condemned the Bay route in toto, declaring that the railway should never have been built, that it was nothing but a contractor's racket, and that having been built and harbor facilities and an elevator provided, it should now be completely abandoned. It criticized the granting of free elevator storage or low rates for a few years while the route is being initially developed. It characterized the whole enterprise as a "colossal failure," "a hybrid of a white elephant and a political sacred cow," and so forth, and so on.

We have no particular desire to enter into any extended controversy with The Financial Post, and it is gratifying to note the much more moderate tone of its later article and the almost apologetic manner in which it seeks to defend its attitude. Nor does it repeat its advocacy of the complete abandonment of the route. However, it does continue to belittle it and to argue that it is economically unsound and cannot ever hope to be a success. It repeats its unsupported charge that the building of the railway was "a plain ordinary contractor's racket from the beginning," and that "it should have been opposed by all good citizens," wherever resident in Canada.

The Hudson Bay Railway was not a contractor's racket. Some of the old Mackenzie and Mann enterprises, notably the building of a line paralleling the C.P.R. around the north shore of Lake Superior, might be so designated perhaps, but it was not a group of contractors but the people of Western Canada who demanded the building of the Hudson Bay Railway. Some money no doubt was wasted in switching the original route from Churchill to Nelson, but sound business reasons alone influenced the switch back again to Churchill. Not racketeering contractors, but the best harbor expert in the world was responsible for that change. And once that change was decided upon the railway was built with a maximum of speed and efficiency and at a minimum of cost. Possibly The Financial Post is a better citizen than more than a million people resident west of the Great Lakes, but we are not prepared to admit that all these people are not "good citizens," as The Post implies is the case.

The Post, in its later article, has this to say: "The truth of the matter is that the opening up of the Hudson Bay route has not attracted any measurable volume of traffic on a purely economic basis. A certain amount of grain has gone out in each of the past two years because of the remission of a major portion of the fees that the Government should be collecting for that traffic."

As pointed out in our former article, and as The Post must admit, and does admit, the route has been only two years in operation. Those two years were in the midst of the greatest depression the world has ever known. They were two years of greatly reduced crop production in Western Canada due to drought. They were years of abnormally low prices for wheat. In every respect they were not normal nor average years. The Financial Post knows all this is true, but disregards it.

How great a tonnage, it may be asked, passed out of the port of Montreal in its first two years following the Government's decision to make it a real ocean port? Did, or did not, the Government offer inducements to encourage shipping in and out of that port in the years of its infancy? How many millions of dollars were spent before the shipping world finally recognized the feasibility of the St. Lawrence route and a ocean port a thousand miles from the open sea? Does The Financial Post now think that the port of Montreal should have been "completely abandoned" two years after its inception?

All the West asks is that The Financial Post, and other eastern interests like it, be fair. With much that The Post says about dinky little harbors, wharfs and canals scattered here and there all over Eastern Canada, we are in agreement. But the great Hudson Bay route cannot be listed in the same class with them.

On page 2 of the same issue of The Post in which its later article on the Hudson Bay route appears, there is printed a despatch from its special correspondent at Ottawa in which the fact is noted that owing to drought there is a serious lack of water in the lower St. Lawrence canal, the port of Montreal, and the ship channel to the Gulf. The Post despatch says: "With only a fraction over 27 feet of water in the harbor, the port authorities at Montreal are extremely worried. Ships may have to restrict their cargo and, perhaps, cancel bookings to Canada's premier port." The Post despatch continues:

"This is not a pleasant prospect. But there is little that can be done about it right now. Shipping circles are putting up a vigorous demand for remedial works to control the flow of water down the St. Lawrence and thus ensure adequate depth for navigation. The Government is ready to carry out a conservation policy but there is a conflict of opinion as to how the work should be done. It is thought likely that a commission will be appointed and the report acted upon next year."

Even at this date, does The Post think the port of Montreal should be abandoned as "a hybrid of a white elephant and a political sacred cow"? Does it feel that this continuous dredging from year to year at the expense of the taxpayer should be stopped? Does it, or does it not, favor the expenditure of more millions in order to ensure adequate depth of navigation in the St. Lawrence and the harbor of Montreal? Or is the St. Lawrence route from, say Quebec to Montreal, a "colossal failure"?

The West takes no narrow view of this matter. Montreal is a great national port. It must be maintained in its full efficiency at any hazard and at all costs. We believe all "good citizens" wherever resident should, and will, adopt that view. If the St. Lawrence route after half or three quarters of a century of Governmental assistance still is in need of that assistance, let it be forthcoming. But why deny similar assistance to the Hudson Bay route in the initial years of that route, and years marked by most abnormal and extremely difficult economic conditions the world over?

Refused Entry To Germany

Noted Singer Barred On Account Of Jewish Ancestor

Madame Schumann-Heink, born in Germany, has been refused permission to visit her homeland. That is difficult to imagine when it is remembered that, during the war, the great singer made many enemies because of her allegiance to the cause of the central powers, in spite of the fact that she had sons fighting on both sides. Born in Germany, she always was proud of her nativity, indeed her pride caused her much hardship during the war years. Madame Schumann-Heink, who is a Catholic, has been notified that she cannot visit Germany, her real crime consisting in the fact that she had one grandmother who was a Jewess. One of six ancestors had Jewish blood in her veins, and that prevents the return of Schumann-Heink to the land of her birth. So all her patriotism and work for her native land are rewarded by the final insult—being forbidden to revisit her native land. They are doing many stupid things in present-day Germany.—Niagara Falls Review.

Hazing Is Banned

Practice Is Not Permitted In Saskatchewan University

"Hazing of freshmen is not permitted in initiation ceremonies at the University of Saskatchewan," stated "Bob" Murray, president of the students' representative council, commenting on the heavy damage verdict against the University of Alberta for mental injury to a freshman in such proceedings.

Mr. Murray explained that certain dress regulations were prescribed by the students' organization for freshmen, largely that they might recognize each other and acquire a feeling of fellowship. The most important feature of initiation, however, consisted of the arrangement for the performance of some work, usually for the improvement of the university campus.

"More drastic forms of initiation have passed out at most of the universities in Canada," he added. The question had been discussed by the National Federation of Canadian University Students. That body favored some kind of initiation but condemned any drastic form, he concluded.

England Has Right Idea

John Bull's Objective Is To Keep Everything Moving

Americans, apprehensive of inflation, are resented shipping their dollars to England and Canada. Americans who do this are foolish. They should keep idle money at home.

There is nothing wrong with Uncle Sam's dollar in the world. It has behind it a greater per capita wealth in territory and foods and goods and technological productive capacity than any dollar on earth.

The truth is that Uncle Sam and his citizens, while rich in natural wealth and productive capacity, are poor in psychology and philosophy. Americans have not yet learned that in sports, in money and in life, losses and reverses are all part of the game. Wise old John Bull, rich in experience and philosophy, grew wealthy by taking losses; England's objective was to always keep the game or the business or the country going.—Vancouver, B.C. Sun.

Feels 50 lbs. Slimmer

After Losing Only 5 lbs.

"I started taking Kruschen Salts a month ago," a young woman writes. "I have lost 5 lbs. in weight, and I feel as if I have lost 50 lbs. I am full of vigor, whereas before I was listless and worried over little things. If my troubles were doubled, they would not worry me today—thanks to Kruschen."—(Miss) V.P.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat—take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning, for it's the daily dose that takes off the fat. When you take Kruschen daily it means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

Modify your diet, and take gentle exercise. The stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are tuned up, and the pure, fresh blood containing these six salts is carried to every part of the body. Then follows "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

Across Africa In "Baby" Car

Two Englishmen Made Trip In 185 Days Including Delays

Alan Glik and Kaiter Kay have just completed a journey from Liverpool, England, to Cape Town, South Africa, in a "baby" automobile. They covered 13,370 miles in 185 days, including delays, which at times extended to weeks. When they crossed the Sahara they were accompanied by a native "pilot" in accordance with demand of French authorities, and part of the way by huge "buses" carrying machine guns for protection against possible Taurag raiders. The distance across the desert is 850 miles, and the temperature was scorching. Tribal troubles caused Glik and Kay to make a detour of 1,600 miles from Tangier, where they were told fighters had closed the direct road south of Fez.

Helen E. Kimball's Recipes

New Cake Frostings By Director, Food Service Department Borden

Among the most interesting recipes which have been evolved recently are frostings which are baked right on the cake! They're easy to make and the crunchiness of the finished cake will thrill you. The basic ingredient in these frostings is sweetened condensed milk which is pure whole milk and cane sugar cooked down to a richness that is almost of a frosting consistency as it comes from the can. It needs only one or two other simple ingredients for a perfect frosting. The cake should be baked as usual and cooled. The frosting is then spread on it. Place the cake on a cookie sheet, or if you haven't frosted the sides use the pan in which the cake was baked and brown delicately in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). The cake will not dry out as might be supposed because it is spread with moist frosting on all sides. Be sure and watch the cake carefully while it is in the stove for sugar mixtures, as you know, burn rather easily.

COCONUT BROILED ICING
Half cup sweetened condensed milk; 2 tablespoons butter, melted; 4 tablespoons brown sugar; 1 cup shredded coconut. Combine all ingredients and blend thoroughly. Spread on cake. Place very thin in broiler under a slow flame. Broil until the icing bubbles all over and the surface becomes light brown. Remove from broiler. Further recipes will appear in later issues.

Business On Cruise's Island
If old "Tohbinson Cruise" could but rear his head and take a look around his little island of Tobago to see present-day activity. For weeks the great harvest of coconuts boomed and a record shipment of some 2,000 bags was made for the United Kingdom. The coconut shipment was taken to Port of Spain, Trinidad by coastal steamer for trans-shipment to England.

Canada Pays Less For Coal Than Other Countries

Canada enjoys lower coal prices "than most other countries forced to import coal," Sir Alfred Core, president of Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries, of South Wales, testified in Quebec at the continued trial in court of King's bench of six coal companies charged with forming a combine to maintain the price of coal.

"Canada imports her coal in summer while prices are low while most other countries import during the high-price winter season," Sir Alfred stated.

French customs officers at Modane, on the Franco-Italian frontier, recently noticed a railway car loaded with barrels, which were billed as containing powdered talc. They were consigned from Italy to a man in Lyons. Seventy-five of the 111 barrels held choice smoked hams packed in talcum powder. The customs charges on the pork seized totaled $1,300.

Thrive In The Arctic

The only domestic animal bred profitably in the Arctic regions is the reindeer, because it requires neither hay for feed nor shelter for protection. There are more than 125,000,000 of them, and it is not uncommon for single breeders in Arctic Siberia to own herds of 10,000 at a time.

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Headaches are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure the name Bayer is the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to let Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her "something she should know about Peter." Gus tells Camilla Peter is a cheat, that he only wants her money, and that he, Gus, loves her himself. At that moment, Peter appears on the scene and knocks Gus flat. On the way home from the party Camilla tells Peter they are going to do something about their problem. She decides that they are to be married, and until Peter establishes himself, go on living their separate lives. Above Peter's protests she carries her point. Gus leaves Peter, and Peter and Camilla make plans for their marriage. They decide not to tell Mrs. Hoyt, who wants to see Camilla marry money.

taches of the justice, on the Saturday following his graduation from National.

Peter had insisted upon renting an automobile and buying his bride a corsage of white daisies and Camilla did not protest at these extravagant trifes. After all, they only could be married once. Any other luxury which they might deny themselves now could be compensated in the future, but they could have only one wedding day. It justified some extravagance. Camilla wore a pearly-gray ensemble collared with silver foil, and gray accessories. The soft neutral tones accented her vivid coloring and scintillating joy.

Murmuring "I do," to the rapid, monotonous questions of the justice of the peace and hearing Peter's deep-toned replies there beside her, Camilla heard in her imagination the muted strains of organ music and reverent phrases, felt the invisible presence of admiring friends, inhaled the fragrance of massed flowers, which drifted up actually from Peter's one little bouquet. A single white orchid that had cost five dollars, nestled in the surrounding mist of white stelia and valley lilies where dozens might have faunted their frail beauty; but because it was the gift of this man who was pledging himself to love and cherish her until death did part, that one orchid was more precious to Camilla than all the others in the world. It seemed to represent to her what Peter wanted to do and could not do for her now, but promised to her in the future. Like their faith in each other and life, it was not eclipsed by the majority of the other flowers; rather, its singular beauty was accented by its more commonplace surroundings.

It was only a few minutes until Peter had slipped the little chaste circlet of white gold over her finger and kissed her with as tender possession as if a whole congregation had witnessed the declaration—and they were man and wife.

They shook hands with the witnesses, the justice recited some perfunctory phrases of congratulation, papers were signed, the very nominal fees paid, and they were out on the street happily bewildered and a little awed by the impetuosity of the sudden transition from inertia into life.

"They entered the waiting automobile and Peter directed the driver, "Out the boulevard to University Place." Their plans had included a wedding dinner at Charm Cottage near the campus. Camilla had said, "I'd like that because that is where we first met. It's a duck in a place, anyway. I always loved it there. The name suits the place exactly, and perhaps it will be the charm for our future happiness."

The June day justified its reputation for being synonymous with love and romance. The boulevard parkway flaunted riotous colors of flowers and vivid new greens of early summer. Tree branches curved and met to form shaded cloisters and roses rambled everywhere with leisurely abandon. A haze of golden light seemed to hang between the sky and earth, sentient with sound and color and fragrance.

Camilla's hand slipped into Peter's, their lips smiled and met, with oblivion to everything around them.

"Gorry it's over now," he asked anxiously.

"Why, of course not. There never was a happier bride than I am, Peter. How could I be sorry?"

"I hope you never will be," he declared solemnly.

"Oh, Peter, don't be so tragic. You act as if this were terribly serious. Aren't you happy about it?"

"It is serious, darling, just as serious as I am happy. And that is in the superlative degree. It means that I haven't a chance to fall now."

"Well," she laughed, "what better inspiration could you have? Isn't that why most people succeed who do because they have to? When you have to win all or lose all, you can't ignore the challenges. It's the half-way people who don't take a chance, and slip along forever. They risk nothing and gain nothing of importance."

"I guess that's right. It takes the fear of losing to stir you to greater effort. My fear of losing you should send me to the top like a skyrocket."

"Just be sure that you don't leave me behind," she warned him with a happy denial of any such possibility.

The wide, iron-banded door of Charm Cottage stood open to welcome them and the gold of the setting sun flooded through its windows to bless them. It was early, and besides there were few students on the campus during this week between commencement and the summer term, so the place was almost deserted. They selected a table for two beside an open window where the breeze fluttered white curtains of dotted muslin and the sunlight danced across the room to its reflection in the burnished copper plates hung on the stone mantel. Quiet prints and samplers on the walls reminded them gently that there was not the first love in the world, canaries and lovebirds twittered drowsily in gilded cages, a few cut flowers on each table contributed a festive air and the pastel-colored organdie frocks of the waitresses added their final touch of charm. The little tables might have been filled with wedding guests and the serving girls attired for the occasion, thought Camilla happily.

"The menu looks as if they had expected wedding guests," she murmured with delight. "Look at this special, Peter; white fruit cup, jelly tomato bouillon, chicken breasts supreme, endive salad with Russian dressing, asparagus Hollandaise—doesn't that sound like a nuptial feast?"

"Order anything you wish, dear, and I'll have the same. Don't, please don't, look at the prices. After today, you may," he conceded.

"Then we shall have the special dinner," she decided.

They lingered over the food, talking and planning with gay confidence. Peter had furnished his studio room alone, as he would have done before he knew Camilla. She had insisted that she would prefer to see it after it was finished, and that she would wait until they were married for her first visit there.

"Of course, if you were not an artist, I should not consider such a risk, even if I am only going to be there occasionally. If you were an engineer or a lawyer or a scientist, the room which you would decorate would be impossible even for a one-room home. But I leave it to you because it will be more your home than mine, and I'd like to be surprised."

"Well, you know I can't do much with my equipment. Even for the work of an artist, it may look pretty terrible to you, surrounded by luxury as you have been."

"Luxury, dear—not beauty. Most of the rooms at home are atrocious. Even when I was a youngster, my artistic eye rebelled at the total disregard for beauty in the lavish expenditure for that house. Of course, it had been furnished in the days before interior decorators stepped into the crisis that is bound to result when wealth and a total lack of artistic appreciation meet. Naturally, when I first went to live with Mrs. Hoyt, I thought the house was a palace. Its heavy grandeur impressed me terribly, as compared with the miserable crowded little home I had left. But it didn't deceive me for long. I remember my first rebellion."

she chuckled reminiscently.

"Did you try to revive the solid mahogany four-poster with green paint?" Peter's eyes twinkled with appreciation.

"Almost that bad. No, I loved the massive old four-poster, and always have. I still experience fleeting moments of feeling like the princess I thought I was on that first night that I lay as rigid as a corpse in the midst of its canopied grandeur. But I first rebelled at the grim old oil portraits that stared down at me from every wall. It seemed to me that every secret I managed to keep from mother Hoyt, they detected and scowled upon. So, with some of the first money I was privileged to spend unchaperoned, I bought some oil paint and began a transformation on their austere countenances. I was about eight years old, then. For one thing, I made them all smile at me. Then I added some modern touches to their costumes and painted blue skies or flowers in the backgrounds to brighten them up." The memory of the escapade still amused Camilla.

"And what was the penalty?"

"Plenty. After the various personal punishments were administered, the precious portraits were sent away to be restored, but never again to return to my room. That was all right with me, but the blank walls reminded me for one long year."

"I was given no more money to spend for a whole year, either. Then, what do you suppose I bought first?"

"Pictures," he guessed. "The happy, beautiful ones that a child like you would love."

"Right you are. Some of them I still have. That was before the time of commercialized prints of adorable babies and modern youth. I favored Age of Innocence, because it represented to me my idea of what my new mother expected of me and I could not seem to accomplish. She was so guileless and submissive that I thought perhaps if I looked at her every day, I should become more like her."

"But you didn't, thank heaven!" Camilla feigned shocked disappointment.

"Now, is that nice of you?" then laughed.

"What were the others? Perhaps I can get some idea of your youthful state of mind from this information."

"The Boy with a Rabbit was one, of course. I adored animals, but I had no pets. Mrs. Hoyt had a horror of animals around the house. I imagine it was because she couldn't read their minds and know just what they were thinking or what they were going to do. There was also Baby Stuart with his cherubic mouth and the chubby hands clasping the red apple. But the one which Mrs. Hoyt thoroughly disapproved and almost forbade my keeping, but which I loved most, was the roguish Whistling Boy, with the light on his happy face and the tattered clothes. I want to have a son like him some day," she added earnestly.

"Your youthful state of mind was above par," Peter said with quiet admiration, after a moment's silence.

Navajo Indians in the vicinity of the Kintell trading post at Gallup, New Mexico, have learned that the field nurse sent out by the United States Government is there to treat their ailments and injuries. And so, when a horse was badly cut in a hatched wire fence, they took it to the trading post for her to treat. Mrs. Lydia Kling, the nurse, sewed up the gashes while the Indians watched in awe.

Not Done In England

Military bands which play at dog races have been disgracing the British War Office. They have been following the dogs. Not like "following the ponies," but actually getting on of the stand and tooting and trotting behind a canine when he wins a race. The Scots Guards did it at Clapton stadium, and someone told the war office. That caused a ruling that bands might go to the dogs, but no follow them.
